Programme area: area eligible for financial support from the Donor States that is defined jointly by the Donor States and the respective Beneficiary State in order to tailor the support to the state on the basis of its needs, priorities and capacity. The programme Education covers three programme areas and contributes to the flagship objective of improving human capital and knowledge base.

Impact: the long-term effects or changes of an intervention on society or the environment.

Outcome: the (short and medium-term) effects of an intervention's outputs on the intermediaries or end beneficiaries.

Output I.1.2.3 shall be exception – it is desirable that projects contribute to this output, since it is expected that at least 40% of the projects shall carry out activities that contribute to the achievement of the said indicator.

NOTE

A project must contribute to all indicators under outcome I.1 and all indicators under both outputs as specified in specific eligibility criteria.

For the outcome I.1 indicator Level of satisfaction with the quality of institutional cooperation the baseline value for each individual project as well as the aggregate value at the programme level shall be determined by the Programme Operator by means of a dedicated questionnaire filled out by the institutions participating in an individual project (Project Promoter and project partners). The Project Promoter itself shall be responsible for verifying the target value determined in the project application. The Programme Operator shall furnish the Project Promoters with a dedicated questionnaire to help them verify the target values.

For the indicators that should be disaggregated (e.g. by sex, age etc. – see Annex 1 of this document), monitoring shall be carried out to ensure the availability of disaggregated data already during the project implementation. Hence, the values indicated in the project application may refer to aggregate target values only, without the need for Project Promoters to specify the respective disaggregated values (e.g. the project application shall include the total number of professional staff trained under indicator I.1.2.3., whereas that same total number shall be broken down during reporting to provide sex-disaggregated data).

Where a percentage (%) or a rating scale (1-5) is used as a unit of measurement for a specific indicator, the data on monitoring of project implementation shall include numerical values along with the values expressed as a percentage or as ratings on a scale (e.g. value 85% shall be transformed into 85 persons out of a total of 100 persons). A project application found inadmissible after the administrative compliance/admissibility check by the Selection Committee shall be rejected, except in cases where an applicant can provide additional information as specified in Table 4.

The Selection Committee may invite via eMS information system the applicants whose application is found incomplete to supplement it by providing the missing documents or information. The latter shall have to be provided within five (5) days from the receipt of such invitation. An application that fails to be supplemented electronically and in line with the invitation shall be rejected.

to an application by the two experts in individual assessments. the next stage to be evaluated by the Selection Committee against the criteria set out in the Call for Proposals. The applications shall also be evaluated by the selected impartial experts.

Each application shall be subject to evaluation by two impartial I experts nominated by GODC as the Programme Operator. At least one of the experts shall be external and independent of the PO (not employed by the GODC). Each expert shall work individually and independently to assess each application and give scores for each quality criterion. The total score achieved by each application shall be the average of overall scores given

If the difference between the total score of both individual assessments is more than 30%, an additional third assessment of the application shall be required. When a third assessment is triggered, the average of the two assessments that are closest in terms of their overall score shall represent the total score given to an application.

The applications shall be ranked in line with the overall score given to each application by experts. A total of six (6) ranking lists of project applications shall be drawn up in order of merit – one (1) ranking list featuring applications addressing outcome I.1 and five (5) ranking lists for applications addressing outputs I.2.1, I.2.2, I.2.3, I.3.1 and I.3.2.

3.10.2.1 Quality criteria

The quality of each application shall be assessed against a set of agreed criteria as follows:

- Relevance of the proposal (30 points)
- Quality of the project design and implementation (20 points)
- Sustainability of the project (10 points)
- Quality of project partnership (15 points)
- Cost-effectiveness (20 points)

4 Core principles of implementation and horizontal principles

Results-oriented management

The commitment to be results-oriented is grounded in the EEA and Norwegian Financial Mechanism Regulations for the funding period 2014-2021. Results-based management (hereinafter RBM) is a management approach which looks beyond activities and procedures to focus on achieving clearly defined results. When applied in projects, the central element of RBM is the “results chain”, which shows the causal relationship between its elements - resources and results (outputs, outcomes, impact) at project level. The objectives, outputs and outcomes of individual projects are clearly linked to, and contribute to reaching the objectives, outputs and outcomes of the programme or programme area under which they are funded.

For more information about project intervention logic and project development consult Part 2 of this Guide for Beneficiaries.

Durability

The projects should have effective mechanisms and structures in place to ensure financial and institutional sustainability of project outcomes and outputs. Thus, projects with partnerships and structures established to ensure the continuation of activities after the project completion, and as such able to deliver more sustainable, long-term solutions for target groups shall be considered of higher quality. Projects recognised as having potential to become best practice or source of inspiration for other projects in addressing equal or similar problems in the Republic of Slovenia or believed to deliver new solutions that go beyond the existing practice in the relevant area shall likewise be considered of higher quality.

Good governance

The concept of good governance is based on the following principles:

- involvement and participation of all stakeholders, women and men, including the most vulnerable groups in society;
- sense of responsibility by the institutions participating in the project towards all people affected by their choices;
- transparency of operation and accessibility of data;
- responsiveness;
- efficiency and effectiveness – the project and its outcomes appropriately address topical issues in society by making the most of the available resources;
- respect for legislation and the rule of law, including human rights and strict zero tolerance for corruption policies adopted by the Donor States.

Sustainable development

Sustainable development is a comprehensive concept, a joint framework underpinning the long-term vision for sustainability in which economic growth, social cohesion and environmental protection go hand in hand and are mutually supporting. Each project to be funded under this call for proposals is expected to contribute to the full implementation of this concept.

Shared values

All projects and activities funded by Financial Mechanisms and supported by national co-financing shall be based on core European values such as respect for human dignity, freedom, democracy, equality, the rule of law and the respect for human rights, including the rights of members of minority groups.

Gender equality

Each project should be designed to integrate the issue of fostering and contributing to equal rights, opportunities and powers between women and men in various social areas.

Risk management

Each project funded under the programme Education, Scholarships, Apprenticeship and Youth Entrepreneurship shall involve risk management tailored to the scope and complexity of the project. Any potential risk can negatively affect the progress of a project, and, in turn, compromise the achievement of project objectives, outputs and outcomes. When Project Promoters make sure to anticipate, foresee and identify potential risks in projects, and take the necessary risk response steps to handle the risks, they can significantly reduce risks or even avoid future risks.

For information about risk management consult Part 2 of the Guide for Beneficiaries.
